Comments: Starting Red Sox pitcher on Rehab Stint

Arm Action: Good

Delivery: Good

Wind-up: Good

Arm Angle: Good

Category:	Present:	Future:	Velocity:	Comments:
Fast Ball (4-Seam)	7	8	98-100	Good Movement, High Velocity
FB Movement	7	8
2 Seam FB	6	7	92-96	Good movement/location vs R/L Hitters
Change Up	8	9	84-88	Kept hitters off balance, K-pitch,
Curve Ball	7	8	84-88	12/6 curve ball, good dev/location
Slider	6	7	88-89	good deviation and velocity

Physical Description: Tall, physical build

Injury/Medical Update: Rehab Start in Lowell

Abilities: Already a starting pitcher for Red Sox. Same 4-5 rotation type starting pitchers. can be a good pitcher when velocity and location are corrected.

Weaknesses: Location, and tends to over throw FB and not getting ahead of hitters. Joe disappointed has been his location and getting behind good hitters.

Summation: Joe Kelly has already been drafted and been in league for a while. He has been on rehab assignment for a couple weeks recovering from injury. Great velocity, but also needs to work on getting ahead of hitters and tends to run up pitch count. Joe had 20 pitches over 2 innings, and hitters went down in order for both innings. Hopefully that will be a confidence booster for Joe as he continues to progress through the MNL.

Bats/Throws: R/R	Scout: G. Connolly

Draft: Round 17 (2017, BOS)

Comments: Has a tall, physical build, good speed out of the box, needs to time his swings well vs FB pitchers, hits well against off speed pitches

Summation:

Frankie Rios is already drafted by the Boston Red Sox and playing for the Lowell Spinners SS affiliate. I have only seen him play a couple of games, but is aggressive at the plate, and does well against off speed pitches. He needs to time his bat vs FB pitchers. Since he was drafted this year, it might be too early to tell where he would fit in the lineup, but see him towards the top tier of the lineup, with his good speed, and able to get on base and start innings off well. 2-4

Arm Angle: Good
Velocity: Ok

Category:	Present:	Future:	Comments:
4-Seam FB	4	5	88-90, spots well, good deception

Change-Up	4	5	83-85 good locat. good vel, K-pitch,

Physical Description: tall, physical build

Injury/Medical Update: NA

Abilities: De Jesus would fit well in the middle part of any rotation, 3-4

Weaknesses: location, and his pitches could be timed well if teams study enough tape. His curveball is loose at times and tends to leave it up and allows hitters to time it well.

Summation: De Jesus is already drafted by the Red Sox and playing for the Lowell Spinners. De Jesus is a tall lefty with a high leg kick, and good set of pitches. He could be a 1-2 part of the rotation deepening upon how successful he is with his pitches. Needs to work on secondary pitches and good location. Opposing hitters tend to know which pitchers he is throwing when he winds up and has a higher leg kick for different pitchers.

Weight: 180

Bats: R

Throws: R

Age: 19

Draft:

Position: LF

Report Date:

Games: 3

Innings: 27

Scout: Connolly, G

Comments: Tall LF, not his best day at the plate, smooth swing, looks for FB over the plate to drive

Categories:	Pres.	Futr	Categories	Pres.	Futr.

Power	4	5	Range	3	4
Running Speed	3	4	Aggressiveness	4	5

Arm Strength	4	5
Arm Accuracy	3	4

Summation:

Marino is already drafted by the Boston Red Sox and playing for the Lowell

Spinners SS affiliate. Have seen him play the last couple of years. Marino does not chase a lot of pitches, and tends to not go after the first pitch. He usually waits to see what the pitcher may offer. His is very selective hitter and good FB hitter. Campana would be a good middle of line-up type of player, and needs to grow and see more pitches.

Summation: Yoan is already drafted by the Boston Red Sox and playing for the Lowell Spinners SS affiliate. I have seen scouted Yoan for a while and is very consistent hitter with good plate discipline. Tends to not take advantage on runners on base in key situations. Good speed out of batters box, and has a good arm in center field. Besides myself, scouts believe that he is a better Pitcher than a hitter and should focus his efforts on pithing.

Summation:

Micheal has been already been drafted by the Boston Red Sox and playing with the SS affiliate team. Needs to take advantage of hitter counts when runners are on base. He is a good FB hitter but needs to work on picking the right off-speed pitches to drive. Tended to be over aggressive when pitcher was ahead in count, and drive any pitch that is in the middle of the plate. He would be a good 8th or 9th bat in the order and better plate discipline.

Summation: Mitchell has been drafted already by the Braves. Mitchell is playing now with the Red Sox and the SS affiliate, and have seen him a couple of times. Needs to work on velocity and secondary command of pitches.
